

What a Pulse report looks like

One weekly scan for Fellside, a made-up brand of walking socks. The brand, answers, sources and numbers are invented for this example. The way they are collected and counted is how Pulse works.

Sample report from persipica.com/sample-report.html. Fellside and every number in it are made up.

Sample: Fellside is not a real brand

Fellside, walking socks

Scan

Weekly, collected 6 October 2026

Assistants

ChatGPT, Claude and Gemini, weighted equally.
Weights set before the scan.

Shoppers

4 simulated shopper types. Not real people or customer data.

Market

United Kingdom, in English. Set per brand.

Questions

27: 24 that don't name Fellside, and 3 comparisons that do, kept apart

Plan

Business, so every section shows. Sections that aren't on every plan are marked.

At a glance

Three numbers, kept apart so one can't hide another. They cover the 24 questions that don't name Fellside: 216 planned answers.

Rate

47% likely 35–59%

of answers name Fellside: 95 of the 205 resolved answers. Last scan was 44%, likely 32–56%. The ranges overlap, so this week's rise isn't a clear change on its own. Over eight weeks the rate rose from 31%.

Coverage

208 of 216

answers usable. 7 timed out on Gemini after retries, and 1 came back blank from Claude. You can collect the 8 again; they'd be labelled as a later collection.

Identity

3 unresolved

mentions Pulse couldn't attribute to Fellside with confidence. They're left out of the rate, not counted against you. 205 answers resolved.

By assistant

Assistant	Named	Rate	Coverage
ChatGPT		47% 33 of 71	72 of 72 usable, 1 unresolved
Claude		52% 36 of 71	71 of 72 usable, 1 blank
Gemini		42% 26 of 63	65 of 72 usable, 7 timed out, 2 unresolved

By shopper

The orange mark is the brand named most often instead of Fellside.

Simulated shopper	Named	Rate	Named instead
Weekend hikers 8 questions. 4 timed out, 2 unresolved		68% 45 of 66, likely 56–78%	Ridgeway, 44%
Students on a budget 6 questions. 3 timed out, 1 blank		72% 36 of 50, likely 58–83%	Tor Outdoor, 38%
Gift-buyers 2 questions, so the range is wide. 1 unresolved		34% 6 of 17, likely 17–59%	Ridgeway, 41%
Parents buying for growing kids 8 questions. All 72 answers usable		11% 8 of 72, likely 6–20%	Pennine Mills, 65%

Findings

Each finding shows the questions, the answers and the sources it rests on. In Pulse you can open every answer; this sample shows one per finding.

Finding 1

Parents buying for growing kids rarely hear about Fellside

Pennine Mills		47 of 72 likely 54–75%
Fellside		8 of 72 likely 6–20%

All 72 answers usable, none unresolved.

Which kids' walking socks last longest?

For kids who wear through socks quickly, Pennine Mills' Junior Trek is the one most reviewers agree on. It's sold with wash-test results and a size guide for growing feet. Ridgeway's kids' merino is softer but thinner at the heel.

Claude, 6 October 2026, ask 2 of 3. Fellside was named in 1 of the 9 answers to this question.

Most cited A review site's list of the longest-lasting kids' socks, in 31 of the 72 answers. Fellside isn't on it.

Their page Pennine Mills' kids' range shows wash tests and a growing-feet size guide.

Your page No durability claims, so answers have nothing to quote.

Suggested fix

● Drafted, waiting for your review

Drafted for your kids' range page

Trail Junior has a reinforced heel and toe, and each size stretches across a full shoe size, so a pair keeps fitting as feet grow.

Your catalogue The heel, toe and sizing come from your Trail Junior product data and size chart.

Asked of you Pennine Mills' page quotes wash tests. Yours has none, so Pulse asks for your results instead of writing a number.

Outreach The review list isn't on your site. Pulse names it as one to approach; it doesn't contact anyone for you.

Finding 2

Gemini quotes last season's price for Trail Junior

Your price £11.00, from your catalogue.

Quoted £9.00 in 4 of the 5 answers that give a Trail Junior price, all from Gemini. ChatGPT quoted £11.00 once.

Source

Two outdoor retailers' product pages still list £9.00. Gemini cited one of them in all 4 answers.

Suggested fix

◦ With retailer

Ask both retailers to update the price. Pulse can't change their pages; it checks the quoted price again on the next scan.

Finding 3

Two answers mix Fellside up with a footwear brand

Asked as a simulated parent

Good walking socks for a ten-year-old?

For kids, Fellside's Trail Junior costs about £9¹ and comes in three colours. Fellside also makes waterproof hiking boots², so it's a good one-stop shop.

Gemini, 6 October 2026, ask 1 of 3

- 1. Price. Your price is £11.00. The £9 comes from a retailer's old page (finding 2).
- 2. Mix-up. Your brand profile lists socks only. The page this answer links for boots is on another company's domain, with a similar name. Pulse recorded both and the exact words it relied on.

Both answers still count as naming Fellside, with the mix-up flagged. Separately, 3 mentions couldn't be attributed, such as "a Fellside-style ribbed sock", which may not mean you. They stay unresolved and out of the rate. If you settle one yourself, Pulse keeps its own decision next to yours.

Finding 4

Professional and up

Shopping agents shortlist Ridgeway more often

120 simulated buying tasks, each given to a shopping agent. 3 broke off before a final pick, so they count for found and shortlisted but not for picked.

Why Ridgeway

Agents could read its size guide and see stock on the product page.

Fix: put the size guide in text

Done

Shortlisted rose from 32% (38 of 120, likely 24–40%) to 41% (49 of 120, likely 32–50%). The ranges overlap, so the next two scans will show whether the rise holds.

Measured on Business

Products

Which product the 95 answers naming Fellside mention. An answer can name more than one product, or none.

Product	Share	Answers	Price quoted
Peak Merino		45% 43 of 95	✓ £18.00 correct in 31 of 33
Everyday 3-pack		38% 36 of 95	✓ £24.00 correct in 12 of 12
Trail Junior		9% 9 of 95	£9.00 in 4 of 5, see finding 2

Questions that name you

3 comparison questions, such as "Fellside or Ridgeway for blisters?". All 27 answers usable. They are kept apart and never count towards the 47%.

Ridgeway		15 of 27
Fellside		9 of 27
No preference		3 of 27

Sources the answers cite most

Across the 205 resolved answers. In a real report each one links to the page.

Ridgeway's product pages	44
Fellside's own site	38
A review site's longest-lasting kids' socks list. Fellside isn't on it.	31
An outdoor retailer's walking socks category	27
A hiking forum thread on blisters	19
Two magazines' gift guides	14

How to read this report

- The shoppers are simulated. They're profiles used to phrase questions, not real people or customer data.
- Rates are worked out question by question, then combined across assistants with weights set before the scan. So a rate can differ by a point or two from its answer count.
- A likely range is a 95% Wilson interval. It covers the variation you'd expect from asking again. It doesn't cover answers that never arrived; that's what coverage is for.
- Real shoppers can get different answers. Assistants tailor answers to a person's account, location and past chats, which no outside tool can see.
- A rate shows how often AI names you, not what shoppers buy.

The full method is on How Pulse measures AI answers.